SANTA ANNA'S SOLO.

I'm stumpless quite, since from the shot Of Cerro Gordo pengin', I left behind to pay the Scorr My grub, and gave my leg in.

I dare not turn to view the place, Lest Yankee fees should find me: And, mocking, shake before my face The Leg I left behind me.

At Buena Vista I was sure "That Yankee" to surrender:
And bade my men "Hurrah! for you're All going on a bender."

That all my hopes and plans were dashed, My scattered troops remind me; But though I there got soundly thrashed, I left no leg behind me.

Should Taylor of my track get seent, Or Scorr beat up my quarters, I may as well just be content To go across the waters.

But e'en should that my fortune be. Fate has not quite resigned me; For in the Museum I shall see The leg I left behind me.

The Miserere at Rome. The night on which our Saviour is supposed to have died is selected for this service. The Sistine Chapel is dimly lighted, to correspond with the gloom of the scene shadowed forth. The ceremonies commence with the chaunting of the Lamentations. Thirteen candles, in the form of an erect triangle, were lighted up in the beginning. representing the different moral lights of the ancient church of Israel. One after another was extinguished as the chaunt proceeded, until the last and brightest one at the top, representing Christ, was put out. As they one by one slowly disappeared in the deepening gloom; a blacker night seemed gathering over the hopes and fate of man; and the lamentation grew wilder and deeper. But as the Prophet of Prophets; the Light, the hope of the world, disappeared, the lament suddenly ceased. Not a sound was heard amid the deepening gloom. The catastrophe was too awful, and the shock was too great to admit of speech. He who had been pouring his sorrowful notes over the departure of the good and great seemed struck suddenly dumb at this greatest woe. Stunned and stupified, he could not contemplate the mighty disaster. I never felt a heavier pressure on my heart than at this moment. The chapel was packed in every inch of it, even out of the door far back in the ample hall, and yet not a sound was heard. I could hear the breathing of the mighty multitude, and amid it the suppressed half drawn sigh. Like the chaunter, each man seemed to say, "Christ is gone, we are orphans-all orphans!" The silence at length became too painful. I thought I should shriek out in agony, when suddenly a low wail so desolate and yet so sweet, so despairing and yet so tender, like the last strain of a broken heart, stole slowly out from the distant darkness and swelled over the throng, that the tears rushed unbidden to my eyes, and I could have wept like a child a child in sympathy. It then died away as if the grief were too great for the strian. Fainter and fainter, like the dying tone of a lute, it sunk away as if the last sigh of sorrow was ended, when suddenly there burst through the arches a cry so piercing and shrill that it seemed not the voice of song, but the language of a wounded and dying heart in its last agonizing throb. The multitude swayed to it like the forest to the blast. Again it ceased, and broken sobs of exhausted grief alone were heard. In a moment the whole choir joined their lament and seemed to weep with the weeper. After a few notes they paused again, and that sweet, melancholy voice mourned on alone. Its note is still in my ear. I wanted to see the singer. It seemed as if such sounds could come from nothing but a broken heart. Oh! how unlike the joyful, the triumphant anthem that swept through the same chapel on the morning that symbolized the resurrection. J. T. HEADLEY

THE TWO ANGELS OF MAN .- We clip the following from the Polynecian, publishleast wothy of republication upon every return from a passage round the world. We therefore give it another start :

Mr. Chandler, in his recent response of a vote of thanks of the common council of Boston, of which he is the presiding officer, cites the following parable told by a Turkish dervis, to a traveller. It is even more beautiful than Sterne's celebrated figure of the accusing spirit and the rocording angel.

"Every man," says he, "has two angels: tell a bad tale for the corn corp when the one upon his right shoulder and one on his bushels are to be measured up. The followleft. When he does anything good the angel on the right shoulder writes it down and If before that time the the man bows down his head and exclaims, "Gracious Allah!— carth let a hand follow and apply a dressing I have sinned!-forgive me!,-the angel rubs it out; but if not, at midnight he seals it, and the angel upon the right shoulder weeps."

SINGULAR ANECDOTE.—Several years ago a charity sermon was preached in a dissenting chapel in the west of England. When the preacher ascended the pulpit, he thus addressed the hearers—"My brethern, before proceeding to the duties of this evening, allow me to relate a short anecdote. Many years have elapsed since I was last wthin the walls of this house. Upon that evening, among the hearers came three men with the ter, but with their pockets filled with stones to the growth of the corn. The labor and for the purpose of assaulting him. After expense of making the application are

It is probable the | 'D-n him, let us be at him now;" but the second replied, "No, stop till we hear what he makes of this point." The minister went on, when the second said, 'We've heard enough now, throw I" but the third interfered, saying, "He's not so foolish as I expected-let us hear him out." The preacher concluded without being interrupted. Now, mark me, my brethern-of these men, one was executed three months ago at Newgate, for forgery, the second, this moment, lies under the sentence of death, in the goal of this city, for murder-the other (continued the minister with great emotion) the third, through the infinite goodness of God, is even now about to address you -listen

GUERRILLA WAR .- The term guerrilla is a dimutive of the Spanish word guerra, "war," and literally signifies a "little war." It is a mode of warfare scracely, if at all removed from that adopted by the aborgines, both being characterized by want of concert in the leaders of differt parties, and by the merciless destruction of women, childern, and unarmed prisoners. The only countries in which this system has ever been practised are Syria, Circassia, Algeria Spain, and Mexico, and it seems therefore that the Arabian blood is necessary to give disposition for this suni-barbarous mode of warfare, distinguished for cruelty and its concomitant vice of cowardice. We need not remind our readers that the Mexicans derive this Arabic characteristic from their Hispanio-Moorish ancestors.

Racy Toasrs.-We do not know when we have met with five better toasts than the following, which we find in the Boston Post of the 8th inst. They were given at the 209th Annaversary Dinner of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery of " The Characteristics of our Country .-The clenched hand in war-the open hand in peace. Rifle barrels for our foes, and flour barels for our friends-cold cuts and a warm welcome for both.

" The Army and Navy of the U. States .-Both ready to suite the enemy and give them fits. The Navy does the cutting out work the army furnishes a Taylor to make the breeches and do the sewing up.

" Ladies' Eyes .- The true artillery of Heaven-a species of battery by which alone a good soldier can be vanquished without shame.

"Infantry Tactics .- The new edition of this work issued by Gen. Scott in Mexico, illustrated with cuts and hasty plates (of soup.) too hot to be eaten with a relish, and with light X-pounders to the text.

"Santa Anna's Foot and Horse .- A cork legand a mule."

A WAG OF AN EDITOR .- The editor of the Hickmans Standard, about two months GOODS to ORDER. ago says that a young lady whose name he was not able to ascertain, came into his dwelling two months before, and remained with his family. He said she had not spoken a word since her arrival and wept almost incessantly. Six weeks after the foregoing was published, the same wag of an editor to relieve public anxiety, comes out with the following: "We have since found out her name. Miss Lucy Hannah is a girl and when she gets a little older will call us father." - L.z. pa.

The Cut Worm.

The ravages of this troublesome depredator in the corn fields of South Carolina du. delay, and he is also further directed not to ring the last Spring, has caused many inquiries to be made respecting their prevention. Perhaps more corn is annually lost in our State from these insects than is made ed at Honolulu. So elegant a thing is at by manuring; and this remark is true, when we reflect that they attack the early planting in rich moist lands, and that an early crop has two chances to one over late planting, in our uncertain climate to make a heavy crop. We have observed that poor soils, this season, have the best stands of corn and that on rich alluvial soils in some places, three unsuccessful attempts have been made, and a stand has not been secured as yet. tell a bad tale for the corn corp when the bushels are to be measured up. The following practice is the only information we have been able to lay our hands on, which seems seals it; because what is once well done is at all practicable, and added to the practice done forever. When he does evil, the an of steeping the seed in saltpetre, might gel on the left shoulder writes it down, but prove available as a preventive. It has does not seal it. He waits till midnight. reason on its side, and therefore deserves a earth let a hand follow and apply a dressing of ashes and ground plaster, at the rate of one-third of the latter to two-thirds of the former; or if plasters cannot be procured, ashes alone, leached or unleached-the latter would be preferable, of course. A handful to each hill would be sufficient. A slight dressing of lime would answer instead of ashes, but in order to preserve the hands, it should be dipped out with a proper dipper, which should be made of a size suitable to the quantity intended for each hill of corn. We tell our readers candidly, the suggestions contained in the above, have the sanction of phylosophy as well as experience, and also that this dressing will exercise the intention of not only scoffing at the minis- further result of being decidedly beneficial caustic qualities of the alkali afforded by the ashes and lime, keeps the worm from the circle of its influence or destroys it. We request our readers to give the above a trial, and to give us an accurate account of the result, both as to its effects in preventing the ravages of the Cut worm and in increasing the crop. It should be dropped on the hill after the corn is covered, and as it will not blow away or evaporate, after it performs its task of driving off the Cut Worms, it will be covered up in working the corn, and thus add a substantial amount of nutriment to the growing crop, by fixing the ammonia and stimulate the corn plants.

DAIRY UTENSILS.—All dairy utensils should be scalded, rinsed, and dried every time they are used. Glazed pottery is not considered desirable for milk or cream, as the acid contained in them acts upon the glazing, (which is generally an oxide of lead,) and converts it into an active poison. vessels made of wood are preferred by many others, for this purpose; although they are liable to become tainted with the acidity of the milk, in which case they can only be thoroughly cleansed by boiling, and when this fails, a little salaratus added to the boiling water will effectually neutralize the acid. The vessels must afterwards be immersed for two or three days in water, which should occasionally be changed. Milk vessels may be made of maple, white ash, hickory, or white pine.

DEEP RED .- A lawyer in one of the northern cities having a very red face, which it was understood was not the effect of living on skimmed milk, was told that he was not much of a lawyer.

"Why, sir," said he, "I have been called the deepest read lawyer in the city."

Warehouse and Factorage.

The subscribers have purchased from Nathon L. Griflin, Esq., the Cotton Warehouse in Hamburg, recently occupied by Dr. J. F. Griffin, and formerly by Messrs, H. L. Jeffers & Co., situated at the foot of the Hill, and immediately at the head of the main business street. From its superlor location, and being surrounded by a stream of water, it is comparatively exempt from the casualty of fire and entirely above the reach of high freshets.

They propose to carry on exclusively the WAREHOUSE and GENERAL FACTORAGE BUSINESS, under the firm of GEIGER & PARTLOW.

Having engaged an experienced and competent assistant, in addition to their own personal attention, and possessing means to make liberal advances on produce consigned to their care, they hereby tender their servis ces to Planters, Merchants and others, in the STORAGE and SALE of COTTON, FLOUR, BACON, and other PRODUCE, in RECEIVING and FORWARDING MERCHANDISE, and PURCHASING

Cotton Press.

We offer to the citizens of Abbeville and the djoining Districts, our improved SWING. ING FULCRE PRESS. The invention was not the result of mere chance, but of long experience and mathematical calculation. As to power, it is equal, if not superior, to any thing now in use. It requires less tim. ber, easier framed, and put up in less time, and with less danger than a screw; and the Press will last as long as any timber protected from the weather or above ground. From the number of these Presses which are now in use from North Carolina to Mexico, we feel no hesitancy in saying that they will supercede the Screw; and there are ten of our Presses up to one of any other, and we feel justified in saying fifty to one. The average duration of Screws in this District is not more than four and a half or five years, and as there is not less than five hundred Screws, see what is paid out in one year.

For single or individual rights, $15.00. We offer the District rights for sale on very low terms, which we consider a greater speculation than there is in the country.

Persons wishing information respecting the Press, will find me for two weeks to come at the residence of Mr. James Cobb. I will build one more Press in this District for $50, every thing found to hand.
